

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for specifying animation by a computer for a drawing illustration includes the steps of: loading a first image into an animation author for display on a display screen; entering an animation object into said animation author; entering into said
5 animation author an animation path for said animation object from a starting position to an end position; and entering into said animation author a playback speed for playback of said animation.